

1956 SERIES I LAND ROVER RARE DRY STORED 7 SEATER CKD WAGON

Exceptionally rare 7-seater CKD station wagon - truly one of a kind in this condition, with outstanding restoration potential. Dry-stored for over 30 years in the Australian outback and another 20 in this collection, it remains remarkably well-preserved. Nearly 70 years old, the steel body shows only light surface patina and minimal rust - a rare survivor and a standout opportunity for any serious collector.

Purchased through Australian newspaper classifieds around 20 years ago, this 1956 107-Inch Land Rover was used on a remote sheep station and was stored in a dry shed from 1975 following the original owner's death. Left untouched for 30 years, it was inherited by a nephew who never restored it, then sold in 2005 into this collection.

OVERVIEW

The original 4-cylinder engine is in place and period details remain, including the canvas water bag mounted on the front bumper, fold-down rear step and intact rear reflectors.

The bulkhead is solid as is the steel dashboard and the three spade seats and rear bench have sound frames. Both rear stowage lockers are intact, and the tub floor is free of cuts or dents. The original rear fold-down seats have been removed.

Featuring many original details - including the Safari roof, Alpine lights, bumper-mounted canvas water bag, and original engine - this 107-Inch is a true time capsule. Dry-stored for 50 of its nearly 70 years, it stands as a remarkable survivor and a genuine piece of Land Rover history, now ready for its next custodian to bring it back to life on the road.
